Introduction

Nature Appreciation Report

This report is designed to help you learn more about your own, inner nature; to appreciate nature around you; and to know what you can do to protect the environment in the best way possible, given your uniqueness as an individual.

In this report, your planets in the signs indicate your inner nature and the natural species and phenomena with which you, as an individual, have an affinity. Your planets in the houses indicate the activities which you would enjoy, pertaining to nature. Your planetary aspects indicate the environmental causes where you would have a particular talent, and where you could express yourself in a positive way towards helping to preserve nature.

Chapter 1: The Sun

Sun in Capricorn:

Capricorn is, traditionally, the sign of mountain-goat, and like this animal you are reliable and sure-footed. Each step which the mountain-goat takes on the high ledges must be done with caution as to safety and, similarly, you are likely to be conservative and well-organized, taking nothing for granted. The mountain-goat knows that if it stays at the top of the mountain, it is safe from predators, and so it is serious about its climb to the top. Human Capricorns are materially ambitious because they believe that that is the only way to be secure. They see the world as a cold place, where every resource available needs to be used in a practical, efficient way, or else be conserved for a future time of time of scarcity. They believe that every person has to be out for him/herself, and if they make an effort, they expect to receive a reward.

You would share a common understanding with the birds which stay all winter in a cold climate rather than migrate in south, and with the wildlife of the Arctic, because they have to be very careful and determined in order to get enough food and warmth to survive.

Sun in the 6th House

You are very good at keeping track of precise details, and you would be able to make a valuable contribution by keeping species lists of the flora and fauna observed in a particular location, along with the dates, times, and conditions of when they are seen. You are concerned about preventive health care, and you would be good at instructing people as to which plants and herbs to grow for their individual health needs. You might be interested in beekeeping, because you would be fascinated with the exacting, delicate work of the bees in a hive.

Sun Trine Moon:

Your parents probably get along harmoniously, and this makes it easy for you to work well with children yourself. You can give them a good background in learning to appreciate nature. You can easily see that nurturing life is the basis of everything, and you can convey this to them. Your conscious and unconscious mind work well together, and you have the willpower to carry out that which you can see needs to be done to be nurturing.

Sun Conjunct Venus:

You have a natural love of life, and your positive outlook about the future of the land can inspire others. You readily appreciate how it is the sun which gives life and energy to the plants and animals. You could convey your enthusiasm through colorful nature art, and you would find this activity to be very self-expressive and beneficial to you. You would have very harmonious relationships with children, and you could show them how to enjoy the beauties of nature.

Chapter 2: The Moon

Moon in Virgo:

You are neat and clean and particular about the food you eat. You are good at nurturing yourself and keeping healthy. You are particular about detail and a good housekeeper. You are hardworking, like a "busy bee". When worker bees make honey, they first partially digest the nectar which has been gathering from flowers. Then they spread it out in the hive, where it becomes partially dried, so that it becomes honey. They eat some of it, and store the rest in honeycomb, so they work very hard in their hives to have the best quality food. People could be healthier, if they learned good habits from the bees - and from those with their moon in Virgo.

Moon in the 2nd House

You are good at providing a secure home for yourself and your family, and if you have a farm, you would be good at providing for large animals such as cattle as well. You are very good at gardening, and have what has been called a "green thumb". You appreciate the beauty of the land, and of the trees, and you are aware that the earth needs to be nurtured and protected, so that it can continue to provide for future generations. You understand that the family farm is the basis of a stable society and a stable economy.

Moon Trine Venus:

You have a talent for nature art, and you could use it to show people the beauties of nature and evoke their willingness to nurture it. You would paint very peaceful scenes. You would be a good cook and grower of natural foods. You would enjoy creating a nice habitat for wildlife, with wildflowers, a pond or birdbath, birdhouses, and feeding stations.

Chapter 3: Mercury

Mercury in Aquarius:

You are aware that the individual mind is part of the higher, universal mind. Your thinking is original and independent because you are able to let go of material attachment and tap the universal mind for flashes of inspiration. Your thinking, therefore, is that of the inspired genius. You like to work with groups of people, because you see the potential of group consciousness in transcending everyday problems.

There has been some research to indicate that migrating birds derive their navigational ability from the stars, and certainly the birds know that migrating in a group solves the practical problems of protection from predators and location of food. There are also birds which breed in colonies, such as herons and gulls.

Mercury in the 6th House

You are very bright intellectually, and could master such subjects as biology or possibly veterinary medicine. You are very precise about details and have an excellent memory. If you kept lists of what birds or plants you observed in particular areas, they would be very dependable and accurate. Because you value cleanliness, you would be good at promoting a clean environment. You take good care of your health, and you might also enjoy teaching others about organic foods, herbs and vitamins.

Mercury Square Mars:

You like to be physically active, and you could teach people about nature outdoors, by taking them on nature hikes. You would also enjoy keeping busy building things outdoors. You would be able to canvass the neighborhood for an environmental cause, and convince people with good arguments as to why they should get involved.

Mercury Trine Saturn:

You would do well to gain a good education, because you are an excellent student, especially when it comes to subjects requiring accuracy and logical thought. You could excel as an entomologist or botanist. You could work at record keeping or enforcement of environmental regulations. You have a talent for being detached and unemotional and able to analyze facts objectively.

Mercury Opposition Neptune:

You would be able to study fish in their natural habitat and then record your observations objectively. You would do well to develop this ability through formal study, such as marine biology, so that you could do something concrete to protect the fish, rather than just worry about them.

Chapter 4: Venus

Venus in Capricorn:

Your attitude towards romance is very reserved, rather than demonstrative. Your marriage may be more related to status and survival than emotions, although you are reliable.

In nature, the raccoons come out of their dens on any warm days during winter, their mating season being from January to March. Animals and birds living in the Arctic are also limited in their romantic endeavors, because of the shortness of the warm season and the possibility of unexpected snowstorms, even after the weather has started to get warm.

Venus in the 6th House

You are interested in preserving the land and keeping it clean and pure. You might enjoy growing organic vegetables and using natural compost to enrich the soil. You would do well in business because you are very practical, or you might pursue agricultural or environmental studies. You might enjoy keeping bees and having fields of clover. You would be kind to animals, large and small. You would have a talent for creating beautiful work environments, such as having plants and nature art in offices.

Venus Square Jupiter:

If you struggle and use your willpower, you could succeed in getting your nature art published, or in running a business of selling others' art. You are interested in finding solutions to the problem of having developments taking over the available farmland and green spaces. You realize that people need to stop having an over-indulgent lifestyle, because of the effect of many people doing this on the environment. You could initiate meditations on nature and the preservation of it, and even get a large group to meditate on the preservation of the planet.

Chapter 5: Mars

Mars in Scorpio:

You are an aggressive strategist, able to take on foes who may be much larger than yourself. You are intense and courageous, even risking death, in order to achieve your goals. You are likely to be interested in the strategies which animals use in order to fight off their predators and to catch very large prey. One such animal is the tiger, which hunts alone at night, stalks its prey, attacks it from behind, and then goes for the neck or throat. Spiders catch their prey in webs which can hardly be seen, and the sticky sundew plant has leaves covered with sticky tentacles, which capture the insect and then wrap around it.

Mars in the 4th House

You would be good at improving your own and other people's homes to make them more environmentally friendly. You could turn the back yard into a place where wild birds and animals would like to visit. You would be good at looking after pets, especially animals. You might enjoy outings with your family to go camping, canoeing, sailing, or kayaking. You would work hard to preserve local history, heritage trails, and natural habitat. You would also be good at habitat creation projects and the restoration of marshes and ponds.

Mars Trine Uranus:

You would have a talent for using astrology towards concrete achievement for the environment. You could get a group started for people to go out in nature and observe how astrology actually applies to the various creatures and phenomena. You like new adventures and experiences, and you would particularly enjoy making new discoveries about animal energies.

Mars Square Neptune:

You would be a strong fighter against pollution especially of the lakes and wetlands. You would have a special empathy for fish, and you might create a special pond for them, where they would be better protected and able to breed successfully. You would have the willpower and creative ability to succeed at nature photography, art, or dance.

Mars Trine Pluto:

You have a real talent for using intense energy constructively, such as by initiating recycling projects, helping to overcome the threat of atomic destruction, or finding solutions to floods and earthquakes. You are able to meditate on using deep, occult forces for the greater good, and then get others involved in doing this too. You have the faith that even the most challenging environmental problems can be overcome. You will feel much better if you put your spiritual and physical resources to work.

Chapter 6: Jupiter

Jupiter in Libra:

You are popular because you are considerate of others and willing to create harmony. Partnerships are important to you, and you go to generous efforts to maintain a strong marriage. You are also good at raising funds and promoting charitable causes, through your sociability and goodwill.

In nature, there is a phenomenon called "symbiosis", in which two different types of organisms live close together for the mutual benefit of each. For example, in a forest, there are certain types of fungi which live at the base of evergreen trees and which break down the soil for the tree roots to be able to absorb. In return, the tree provides the fungi with usable food, because they cannot photosynthesize on their own.

Jupiter in the 3rd House

You could study or teach at a university, about nature and the environment. Others are willing to learn from you because of your enthusiasm and knowledge. You could be a prolific nature writer and publisher, especially if you combined this with your love of travel. You would be a good nature commentator, because you would have a perspective on what is happening in different places. You would be particularly interested in migration studies. You are energetic, agile, and physically active, and you might enjoy hiking, cycling, or skiing.

Jupiter Sextile Neptune:

You have a great deal of mystical awareness, and you could lead others in meditations to experience their oneness with nature. You could encourage others to expand their awareness of nature by showing them your nature art and photographs, and encouraging them with their own artistic expression out in nature. You would do well to take advantage of your opportunities to encourage the fish to increase in their numbers, by having ponds for them or by teaching others to take better care of the lakes.

Chapter 7: Saturn

Saturn in Libra:

You are aware that harmonious relationships are necessary for progress, and that cooperation among people is the key to success. You are likely to have a lasting marriage, because you accept the responsibility which an enduring partnership entails.

In nature, there are birds which mate for life, and one is the Canada goose. While the female is nesting, the gander stands on guard nearby. The beauty of flowers has a serious purpose too, because it is in this way that they attract the bees which spread the pollen for their reproduction.

Saturn in the 2nd House

You would be willing to work hard over a long period of time to conserve the land, slowly building a permanent structure which would achieve this. You might be interested in saving large animals. If you had an organic produce farm or business, you would be willing to keep working at it day by day, even if it meant incurring a debt, until it succeeded.

Saturn Square Pluto:

You would fight hard for the use of caution to prevent ultimate destruction. For example, you would be actively concerned about global warming, atomic power, and the effects of pollution. You would have tremendous courage in life-or-death situations, such as cold-climate survival or saving people from floods. You would strongly believe in preparation and prevention, as the best way to survive.

Chapter 8: Uranus

Uranus in Pisces:

You may have begun life in a secret, hidden existence, but you are learning to break free of that and discover new ways of looking at things. Your emotions may at first hold you back but, if you learn to meditate, you will be able to use your dreams and flashes of intuition to connect to a far deeper purpose.

In nature, the beautiful butterflies begin life inside a cocoon, but they gradually emerge, discover they can fly, and then go from flower to attractive flower, discovering nourishing nectar in each one.

Uranus in the 7th House

You could work on new partnerships or agreements to protect the environment. You might like to participate in a community flower garden, which would look very beautiful and attract butterflies for all to enjoy. You have an intuitive sense of harmony. You would be interested in the courtship of different kinds of birds.

Uranus Trine Pluto:

You could become successful with new inventions to transform waste into usable products. You would be courageous and quick to respond, by collecting financial aid for persons threatened by natural disasters. You could lead group or mass meditations to save the planet. You are well aware that it takes spiritually inspired ideas to transform the earth and physically regenerate it. You could use astrology or yoga to help renew the collective consciousness.

Chapter 9: Neptune

Neptune in Leo:

You were born at a time when domination of the seas became an issue, but, among the more evolved, this took the form of nature art and photography, in which the beauties of the maritime resources were shown to all. There was much creativity and inspiration, from scenes such as the sun setting over the water.

Neptune in the 12th House

You might be interested in nature photography or painting, especially water scenes and fish. You could have an aquarium or a pond with fish. You would like to retreat to a quiet place near the water or go out in a boat. You might like sailing, canoeing or swimming. You are concerned about the well-being of fish and the purity of the water for them. You would be very compassionate towards small animals and birds. You could heal them psychically and listen to their mystical, subtle messages, as to what they and the planet need and what they can teach us about sensitivity.

Chapter 10: Pluto

Pluto in Cancer:

You were born at a time when the population had increased, and society was faced with the question of how to feed the masses. There was a great emphasis on nurturing and caring for children. Families taught their children about how the animals and birds cared for their young, and many children had pets. Fiction stories with animals as the central characters were also popular. Because there were world struggles over nationalist sentiments, many homes were destroyed, and that was why a regeneration effort was made to preserve families, homes, and nature.

Pluto in the 11th House

You could lead or join an environmental group which could have a widespread influence in bringing about radical changes. You would be a very dynamic leader of such a group. You could use a computer or telephone to reach many people with your message. You might be interested in saving rare birds. You could reach many persons with astrology.
